Question Booklet

Instructions:

1. There are 9 pages in this Question Booklet.
2. Time allowed is 30 minutes.
3. Do not write anything in this Question Booklet.
4. Answer all questions in the Answer Booklet provided.
Recently, the government of Finland decided to introduce stronger laws against smoking, which will be stricter than the laws in Hong Kong. Hong Kong’s anti-smoking laws have banned smoking in many public places, such as restaurants and shopping malls. In Finland, smoking will be banned in more places, including some cars. The display of cigarettes in shops will also be banned. The government in Finland said it wants to ban smoking ‘once and for all’.

Many other places, such as Britain and Canada, have smoking bans, but they are not as strict as in Hong Kong or Finland. In some countries, there are separate areas in restaurants and bars where smoking is allowed. However, smoking is harmful to many people, including non-smokers, and is therefore not welcome at all.

Anti-smoking laws are being introduced everywhere since smoking is associated with many illnesses such as mouth and lung cancer as well as heart disease. Enforcing smoking bans in public places makes those areas safer and cleaner for everyone, particularly children. Banning smoking also means that it is less acceptable to smoke in public. Therefore, there has generally been a move to ban smoking around the world.

You are reading two book reports for your English class.

Read the book reports and answer the questions.

Book Report 1
By Terry Chan

Last week I read a book called ‘Stranded’. This is a real-life story by Charles Watts about a couple stranded at sea. People will love to read this book.

One early morning, John and Kate take their little boat out to sea. John wants to do some fishing while Kate is hoping to see dolphins, as they are a common sight at this time of the year.

Unfortunately, the weather changes and they get caught in a violent storm. The powerful waves flip their little boat over and Kate struggles to stay on the surface. John realises she is not wearing her life jacket. Fighting against the wind and waves, John takes off his life jacket and manages to put it on Kate. Hours later, they are saved by a fishing boat.

Relaxing at home the next evening, they listen to a news story about their adventure at sea. However, what the news reporter does not mention is how brave John was to save Kate’s life.

People can learn a lot from John’s selfless act. He is a real-life hero.

Book Report 2
By Simon Lau

Jamie Lee Mak’s ‘Spirit and Courage’ is a book about a man, Ray Chan, who saves a young boy from drowning in a lake. He becomes a hero to many people but, in my opinion, he takes advantage of the situation and desperately tries to become a celebrity.

On a holiday weekend, with families enjoying themselves at a lakeside park, Ray notices a young boy almost drowning in the lake. Within a few minutes of the boy’s cries for help, he is in the water rescuing the drowning boy. Once Ray swims back to shore with the boy, the crowd cheers him as a hero.

Later, the local TV station sends a reporter and cameraman to interview the boy’s parents and, of course, Ray Chan.

From that moment on, Ray is interviewed on television and the radio. As he becomes more famous, his story begins to change. He makes it sound as though he has saved the little boy from a raging storm at sea. Sadly, I cannot say this book is worth reading since Ray forgets all about the little boy. He only wants to make himself look like a hero.

Police Action

For the past few weeks, the case of two innocent women arrested by police has been the lead story in all the newspapers and on TV news broadcasts.

At a busy shopping centre, two women, Ms Brown, 30, and Ms Austin, 29, were sitting in their parked car in front of the main entrance to a department store. All of a sudden, their car was sandwiched by two vehicles, stopping them from leaving. About eight men with guns jumped out and forced them to open their car doors. It was only later that the women found out that they were actually plainclothes police officers.

In a complaint made against the Police Department, the women claimed they were roughed up by the police. They said that the police hit their car, smashed a window, then slapped their faces and accused them of hiding drugs. They were finally taken to the police station.

According to police spokesperson Roger Hardy, it was simply a case of mistaken identity and the police had not slapped the women. They might have accidentally pushed the women and he apologised for their actions. However, the women still plan to take legal action.

When asked why they didn’t open their car doors, the women said that the men did not look like police officers. They were thinking that the men were going to rob them, or even worse, hurt them.

Choose the best answer and blacken the circle in the Answer Booklet.
