Judy Wong writes books for primary students. She was born in Beijing. Now Judy lives in New York. She has written more than 30 books. She is often on television. Judy is famous.

In primary school, a teacher asked Judy to write about her dreams. She wrote her first story about a princess in a castle. She has never stopped writing since then.

Today Judy tells stories to her two children. Then she writes the stories down. Her stories become books. Children in Hong Kong and Japan love her stories and they find her books full of love. They also write to Judy to share their feelings about her stories!

Wednesday 24th June

What an exciting day! Today was the school singing competition. I joined the competition because my friend, Jane, said I had a great voice. She said I could sing well. I was afraid when I stood in front of my classmates and teachers in the hall. My heart was beating very fast. But when I started singing, I really had fun. I won the competition. I was the champion! I got a trophy. But I was a little sad because Jane didn't see me sing. She went home because she was sick.

Mum smiled when I showed her the trophy. She said, "Well done, Alice! Let's have a party." I will ask Jane and Mary to come to the party. They are my good friends and we always share our happy and sad times together. I hope Jane gets better so she can join us.
